Harlan J. Berk, Ltd. has presented an innovation in antiquities and numismatics for some time now. The system is simple. When you want an antiquity or coin in the sale, just bid the estimated price by phone or mail. We will send you the antiquity or coin immediately. No waiting for the closing of the sale. Any and all antiquities or coins not sold before the closing date will be sent to the highest bidder on Sept. 8, 1993.

EXAMPLE—You bid estimate on an item valued at $100.00 and if your bid is the 1st to reach us, you will receive the item immediately. If on the other hand, you bid $75.00 on the same item and are still the high bidder at the end of the sale, the item will be mailed to you on the closing date, Sept. 8, 1993.

If you are ever in the area, stop in and see us! Of course, it's best to call first.

ALEXANDER III THE GREAT Lifetime Tetradrachms and Drachms

Alexander the Invincible, later renamed by the Romans, Alexander III the Great, became king of Macedonia in 336 BC and was king of most of the known world when he died in 323 BC. The silver coins of Alexander III the Great bear a seated image of Zeus holding an eagle on the reverse and on the obverse a portrait of the god Hercules. The Hercules depicted on the Alexander drachma and tetradrachma is not a bearded Hercules as is often seen, but a beardless youthful Hercules, a man in his late twenties. The fact is that the portraits of Hercules often bear a close resemblance to the little ivory carving of Alexander found recently in the tomb of his father Philip II. Alexander III the Great's coinage was so popular that it was issued following the types he initiated for some 200 years after his death. These drachmas in this offering were issued during Alexanders actual lifetime from 328-323 BC and were in fact struck to pay veterans returning to Macedonia after their years of conquest. One of these drachmas represents a day's pay for one of Alexanders soldiers, according to Martin Price. The most remarkable thing about these particular coins struck during Alexander's lifetime is that they were issued from silver captured during Alexanders conquest and most likely from the treasury at Persepolis of the great Persian king Darius who was defeated by Alexander.

To sum up, when you hold one of these Alexander drachmas in your hand, you are holding what is most likely a silver portrait of Alexander the Great made of silver captured in his world conquest and issued by him to pay the very soldiers that conquered the known world 2300 years ago.

522. GALBA; 68-69 AD, Sestertius; BMC-62, RIC-434. . . . . 22500
- The Hunt specimen of the Galba Sestertius from "Wealth of the Ancient World" sold June 19, 1990, and the McLendon specimen purchased by us at the Christie's sale this Spring during the NYINC were sold to Hunt and McLendon by the same company at the same time about 12 years ago. Both men were from Texas, and the parallel continues: both of the coins must have come from the same find because Galbas of this quality are quite rare, and not only is the quality the same but so is the patination. To continue - both coins are of the same artistic style and, in fact, from dies cut by the same hand as they are so similar they could be die-mates but are not.
- Over the past decades I have seen and admired these dies many times in their usual condition: Fine. The head is bold and strong with most of the hair missing and the wreath obliterated in the middle of the head; still not a bad die at all but in EF+ -- what a die - what a coin!
- Now the parallel ends. The Hunt coin, not quite as nice as ours, after I carefully removed some compacted dirt from the eye and profile, sold for $71,500 with commissions. The McLendon specimen, now in our sale, can be purchased for $22,500.

The following lots 536-611 are Roman tetradrachms, mostly from Egypt. Because of the low fineness of the silver, many of these coins are lightly granular as is usually the case. This fact then will not be noted for the ensuing lots except when unusual to the good or bad side.

685. Apulian Oinochoe; 4th Century BC. Attributed by Professor A.D. Trendall to the White Sakkos Group. A parallel as given by Trendall is the Painters of Bari 5925, 5926 RVAP II No. 29/322-3, especially in the treatment of the rock and the woman's head and feet. The White Sakkos Painter is the immediate successor and true heir of the Baltimore Painter.

Piece depicts on body, two females painted in reserve with applied black. The female to the left sits upon a pile of rocks. She wears a long chiton and her hair is bound up in a kekryphalos done in applied white. In her left hand she offers an open box in applied white. In her right she bears a vine with a bunch of grapes also done in applied white. A branch suspended in the field over her right arm is done in an applied yellow for the vine and reserved areas for the leaves. The female to the right stands with her right foot upon a pile of rock. Sharing the characteristics of the figure to the left, she holds a patera in an applied yellow and white, in her right hand. The left holds an elaborate chest with a male and female depicted on two sides. The chest is in reserve and is outlined in applied white. Between the two figures is a tympanum done in applied white.

Below the main scene in reserve is a wave pattern. At the top between two reserve bands is ten nine pointed rosettes in reserve with applied yellow at centers and points. At neck, above rosettes is a tongue pattern in applied white.

The back is decorated in reserved palmettes and floral scrolls intertwining each other.

Finally, near the top of the handle facing the mouth of the piece and at the bottom of the handle facing the rear is two moulded human faces. One is in the painted black glaze near the spout and the other in reserve at rear. Has no restoration, and comes with 5 X 7 photo of piece with Trendall's hand written attribution on the back. 16 1/2" High . . . 6000

Piece depicts two figures facing in reserve. A female on left facing right, wears a long chiton and holds a patera (or mirror) in her right hand, and a cista (or box) with a branch protruding out of the top in her left. To the right facing left, a winged eros holds a situla in his left hand. Eros, whose right arm is outstretched to accept the cista from the female, wears beads about his neck and chest, and around his left thigh. There are bracelets coiled around his forearms and shoes worn upon his feet. Both figures have applied yellow for the articles they carry, and they themselves are done in applied black. The tops of eros' wings are decorated in applied white.

Between the two figures stands a very large stemmed vessel in applied white, and to the right at eros' knees lays a large fan also in applied white.

Running around the neck between reserved bands five nine pointed rosettes sit side by side. All five rosettes are in reserve with applied yellow and white throughout points, centers, and areas between.

Finally, the sides and back are decorated in an elaborate network of reserved palmettes and intertwining floral scrolls. This piece in its rare size has no restoration. Comes with 5 X 7 photo of piece with Trendall's hand written attribution on the back. 11 1/2" High, 9 1/2" Long, 8 1/2" Wide . . . 8500

687. Apulian Mug; 4th Century BC. Attributed by Professor A.D. Trendall to the Kantharos Group of RVAP II, Nos. 29/601ff; also of Supp. II, Pl. CV. Piece depicts winged eros wearing a necklace, earrings, and a kekryphalos. The jewellery is in applied yellow, the kekryphalos is in reserve with applied yellow, the wings are in applied white with yellow. The neck is decorated with a band of reserved laurel leaves, while the back of piece has a reserved palmette with foliage. Finally, the black-glazed handle is knotted near the top of the arch. Photo of piece with Trendall's hand written attribution accompanies piece. 6 1/8" High, 5 1/4" Wide . . . 2500

688. Duanian Pyxis; 4th Century BC. Piece depicts white palmettes around center of body with geometric designs in red above. Overall surface area possesses a bright yellow. Missing lid. 4 7/8" High, 6 1/8" Wide . . . 750
